The Art of Two

Tuesday, August 30, 2022

Throughout history, the Art of Two has had many names and is described in some of the most mistranslated and misunderstood works in history and that is because only the most advanced forms of life can and do practice that Art. Lower forms of life cannot comprehend it, nor have any interest in learning it, even though it is the most important form of Art that can or ever will exist. It simply takes a superior mind.

One can say that the Art of Two is mating, the likes of which is simply incomprehensible to lower forms of life. One can say that the Art of Two is mating which takes place during the whole of one's life.

Most forms of life mate with a specific organ for sexual reproduction, a superior form of life mates with its whole body, mind and soul. A superior form of life lives for an orgasm the likes of which an inferior form of life cannot even imagine.

The Art of Two is the topic of the Bible, of Plato, of Patanjali, and perhaps others. Plato called it dialectic, which translates as The Art of Two, while Patanjali called it Yoga, the binding together of two for parallel walking throughout life.

The most difficult text concerning the Art of Two is difficult because it tests a mind's ability to process information which is required to practice the Art; yet it too defers the Art as a procreative form of art in a masterful metaphor which can be resolved to a rather concise statement: Adam and Eve are a Conjugate Binary Pair whereby Complete Induction and Deduction produces the human race in body, mind and soul. I.e. complete procreation of two.

The stupider forms of life which use grammar to describe love, describe it as something perceptible, the intelligible is beyond their scope of understanding. They speak of falling into and out of love, and put promiscuity and whoring into the most beautiful verbal constructs they can imagine. They are, unknown to themselves, illiterate and will always be illiterate. No matter which words they use, the sum of those words are no different than a dog riding a leg, of making themselves or someone else happy. The illiterate are schizophrenic, a state of existence they cannot overcome.

A superior mind, a superior form of life, knows that what may be predicated of any thing is wholly determined by the definition of that thing. A mind is, when linguistically functional, the most powerful life support system possible; as such it has a well-defined biologically determined job to perform and well-defined physically determined means of doing its job. A mind is a symbolic information processor used to encode and process all behavior in order to be able to write back to the body the most beneficial behavior for maintaining and promoting life over the entire biosphere, and therefore, love is what two do together to maintain and promote life over the entire biosphere, together, as one. They do not expect that their partner is to make them happy or sad, but always expect a productive relationship, in the fulfillment of life supporting behavior with their partner, a partner which will be with them the whole of their life.

The Art of Two, refers to the two parts of a single thing, of one. These two parts, called a noun and a verb, for example, are used as the foundation of every form of behavior. A unit, a thing, is also called a standard of behavior over every possible system of grammar. That standard of behavior for a superior form of life, is procreation, not measured by a number, nor a feeling, but by functionality over the entire biosphere. Literacy is the ability to read with the body whole, process that information in order to judge the best results for productive behavior, and to write the results back to our body as our own behavior. This means, procreation, with the whole body, mind and soul, which no lower form of life can even attain to.

Any dog can hump a leg, but rare indeed is a soul engaged in the Art of Two as pro-creationism. Animals talk about how they feel, superior animals speak about what they have accomplished and created.

Currently, this is still the age of animals on the earth, the age of Man has not yet arrived. A superior human being, longs for the age of Man, by being able to show what they have done to help bring it into fruition, be it the studies to make one's self better, or the products one has tendered to help the environment, that is behavior, provable to be for the betterment of the whole. Living to improve the one, or the many, involves exactly one and the same process of living.

The common element, of superior people, is the drive to learn judgment which is the product of a factual and provable Grammar Matrix which affords a superior Man, the standards by which to measure the result of any behavior or their combinations, in short, symbolic information processing, the intelligible of a superior form of life.